Summary

Greetings! I am Olorunfemi Damilare, and I possess a strong passion for nurturing creativity in the realms of product and brand development. With an extensive background encompassing over four years of experience in experiential design, brand strategy, and UX design, I have been actively involved in the growth of brands and the creation of impactful, visually appealing design solutions that leave a lasting impression on users.

At present, I am engaged with a governmental agency known as WAPA, where I focus on equipping women with valuable tech skills. My role primarily involves training women in desktop proficiency, graphics design, and UI design. The training is organized into batches to accommodate a diverse range of students.

While my primary role is that of a UI designer, I occasionally take on the role of a design enthusiast who seeks to optimize product functionality and encourage user engagement. Hence, you can refer to me as a remote UX/UI designer. I have a genuine passion for my work and am not hesitant to immerse myself in the details to ensure the best possible outcomes.
